BATTLE BEGINS IN CONGRESS

Insurgents Plan Change of Rules

AND REVISION OF TARIFF

By Schedules-Murdoch Says Country Demands Immediate Cut in the Tariff on Wool and Then Reductions by Schedule.

Washington, Dec. 6.-The final session terday with many portents of important events ahead. While it is expected that there will be little legislation achieved, there will be little legislation achieved, the air is full of politics. Politics of the little legislation achieved, Von diether the little legislation achieved. there will be little legislation achieved, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

You distinctly feel the cold breaking and all the disagreeable grippe symptoms leaving after the very first dose. Republican, insurgent and regular. On all hands the politicians are looking for-

be any tariff revision in this session, there is no concealing the fact that talk of this kind is in the air. The House insurgents are bent on doing the fact that falk than fifty thousand dollars and contains the first than fifty thousand dollars and contains the fifty thousand dollars and contains the first than fifty thousand dollars and contains the fifty thousand dollars and contains insurgents are bent on doing two things. One is to compel a change in the rules so as to provide for a committee on committees, the other is to set the ball rolling for revision of the tariff, schedule by schedule. Insurgent leaders are talk- is no other medicine, made anywhere ing strongly that the wool schedule must be overhauled. Representative Murdock, the red-headed insurgent leader from Kansas, had barely got to town before said the people were expecting Congress gist in the world can supply to sit up nights, get the appropriation bills out of the way, and then get after the duties on wool and woolens.

Mr. Murdock says the people are watching Congress as never before, are not deceived by any talk about party lines, and they are likewise keeping a sharp eye on the higher courts. Champ Clark, who will be the next Democratic speaker, was given an ova-tion as he entered the House chamber at noon. So was Speaker Cannon. The Democrats were wildly enthusiastic. The Republicans were bent on showing that they knew how to take their medicine and were good losers, and that, though beaten, they were not down and out.

Despite the brilliant picture presented by the galleries with their crowds of visitors, a distinctly sombre air pervaded the Senate chamber when that body was called to order. Hundreds of handsomely gowned women occupied seats in the galleries and looked down upon the sen-ators as they entered the chamber, greeted each other and took their seats preparatory to the openi

But nothing in the brilliancy of the picture could efface from the minds of those acquainted with the Senate the fact that four familiar faces and forms Minnesota Congressmen Thinks One Will were missing, having been removed by death since the close of the last session. Not only was it borne in upon everybody who witnessed the proceedings that the hand of death had rested heavily upon the Senate in the few months since the close of Congress last summer, but likewise that there had been momentous political changes. Nobody could look upon the senators in their places and not reflect that this is the final session for such veterans as Senators Aldrich and

Mrs. Trembly was down town and Mr. Trembly, who is a night watchman and who sleeps in the day time did not respond. Miss Scott, who is not very active, began to hunt about for her clothing and other things she wanted to save. When she of them she found that she could not go down the stairway, the ascending smoke was too thick. The excitement attending the discovery of the fire was so intense, that nobody thought to ring Parliament the Unionists must make a ture, including 140,00,000 fire, or $27, an alarm at first and the fire was given a good start, before the department upon which he fell from the 700-foot sponded to a call from box 37.
